

Research papers

It is really hard work for the student aspiring to write the research paper. The first thing to bear in mind is to avoid premature-cognitive-commitment. This phrase is often used in academic circles and refers to deciding ahead on a thesis and then going full steam ahead looking for information for the research paper. One should wait and watch and give your guide and yourself enough time before embarking on the perilous journey of writing a research paper. In research paper matters the subject of literary research pops up. It is about dealing with characters in literature, style of writing, the atmosphere and setting, the theme and all against the backdrop of the literary movement of that time. Another pair of words often used in writing of research paper is primary-source. This refers to your primary text the piece of literature you have gone through yourself. Thus we see that before actually embarking on the work of writing the research paper it is necessary to know the standard vocabulary used in academic circles. You will have to learn library vocabulary, choose a topic for research, and find books, journals as well as articles. Also the research paper work will expect of you to distinguish between scholarly and popular writings, get used to calling call-numbers, UC e links, work off campus and yet be connected to the library and avail yourself of browsers that have been recommended by the library of your university. In the advanced stage of working on research paper you will have to load yourself with statistics, go through all the information available on the web and evaluate the same carefully. In your research paper project you will have to keep some while rejecting others. You must become adept in separating the primary from the secondary sources. Then of course hunting through government information is an absolute must as you proceed with your work of research paper. You will have to be conversant about the matter of citation styles and bibliographies. These are very much relevant to your task of writing the research paper. The web sites can be used for the researches. There is a method because there is just too much information floating in cyber space. So there is a strategy in evaluating all that you get from the web for your research paper. For the writer of the research paper the web faces a challenge. It is different from what one is used to face from the library shelves. Web sites seem disorganized.. The Internet is not the suzerainty of any one person or body. This the scholar, ploughing through the research paper via the web, should bear in mind. There are no quality or standards pertaining to editorial work. Web information is still treated with suspicion by serious academics. But none can deny the flexibility of the web opening up vast new pastures for grazing. It was something that could not have been dreamed of a decade or so ago for scholars doing research paper.
