

The black community set to travel to Africa.

The country is a land of natural contrasts from the giant snow-capped mountain - Mount Kenya astride the Equator, to the splendor in the depths of the Rift Valley with a dozen lakes to choose from, rivers where crocodiles laze on the banks, mineral hot springs, Savannah teeming with giant waterfalls, dense and lush jungle the home of rare beautiful birds, described as the origin of man kind history - the list is endless. Kenya has some of the best beaches all lined with magnificent coral reefs and yet only receives 0.7% black community arrivals. The country has always depended on tourism and the traffic from the US is seconded by the European countries, the black community statistics, from a recent study estimates that only 6 per cent of the black Americans arrived in Nairobi from the general Americans who traveled into Kenya in 2006. Magical Africa Ltd, an online travel and tour consulting company offering Kenya safari packages is out to try and change things around. Striving to make changes and hope to realize that dream someday. The project includes discounted tariffs, with prices that range from six hundred dollars for a weeks vacation safari tour package and training of drivers and guides / hostess on cultural education and ancestral values. To experience Kenya safaris for say, families, individuals and corporate there are specially packaged cultural tours and wildlife safaris set up end up into that well deserved beach break on the Kenyan coast with was once the transit point during the slave trade. The beach is documented as the best vocational beach on the southern sea board. Kids, families, friends can travel and should be allowed to rediscover and learn the origin of mankind or take part in this amazing educational safari and cultural trips. Kids programs are well laid out in most lodges and bush tented camps, they include lessons and short lectures by trained guides on traditional hunting skills, identifying animals foot prints, butterfly catching, environmental protection, masai homestead visits, helping out the masai kids in their schools tasks and identifying animal and birds sounds, teenagers could even help in projects like school constructions. This gives the parents time to me alone, sit on the hammock, read a book or sip the wine. Most are happy to join in. Kenyan's reassured senator Obama of their vote in the US poll in his recent visit, then came Chris rock two months later, the Kenyan community loved and embraced these and many other black visitors. Must go spots include The Masai Mara game reserve, Diani beach and Lamu islands. 60% of the black celebrities have at one time visited Kenya in the last five years, this can only translate to - there must be something different that interests them all. Accommodation in Kenya will range from five star hotels in Nairobi and game location, Hilton, intercontinental, holiday inns among the many international brands. Game lodges are five star establishments in the middle of nowhere, just awesome views of Africa landscapes, lost of wildlife and cultural experience. Luxury tented camps is a must do, these are permanent tented establishments, an accommodation tent will come with en suite private bathroom with flush toilets, hot and cold showers, a queen size bed, lamps and a comfortable verandah some come with hammocks for that afternoon siesta, most verandas will overlook the plains or a waterhole where wildlife visits occasionally. Meals in all major game lodges and camps are usually buffet served from the main restaurants, guaranteed you will not miss out on your favorite drinks at the main bars, you can even settle this directly at the bar using your credit card, visa or otherwise. Mid range to budget basic camping options are available in the game parks or conservation areas in Kenya, all comfortably set out to suite everyones needs and budget. The Magical black Kenya project hopes to invite all brothers and sisters into the most celebrated and natural destination ever Kenya.
